

Code of Ethics

As members of ACCESS, we recognize our responsibilities toward God, the public, and the responsibilities toward God, students, public, and the Association. To fulfill these responsibilities, we pledge adherence to the Code of Ethics.

1. The logo or name of the Association will never be used in a way that asserts or implies that affiliation with the Association denotes accreditation.
2. All publications and promotional efforts will truthfully present the programs and/or services of the member and will avoid claims, comparisons, and statements which may reflect negatively on other institutions.
3. Academic and financial requirements will be set forth in an ethical and straight-forward manner.
4. Members will not discriminate because of race, sex, color, or national origin.
5. No practice will be employed which will reflect negatively on the kingdom of God or the Association.
